

Farmaesthetics' Commitment to Ethical Business Practices, Humanitarian Causes, & Ecologically Conscious Manufacturing

Farmaesthetics was founded on the principles of sustainable agriculture learned from the rural lifestyle of the founder's own farming family heritage. Committed to using organic herbs and flowers, Farmaesthetics supports small U.S. family farms and organic growers.

The products are synthetic -free and retain shelf life and stability in mass production. They have undergone rigorous dermatological testing and are certified with two year shelf life, hypoallergenic and nonirritating.

The company uses recyclable, minimal packaging, recycled boxes for shipping, and cornstarch packing materials only.

Products are donated to hospitals for use in women's oncology programs because of its synthetic-free formulations that help ease and relieve difficult skin conditions associated with chemotherapy and radiation.

Donations of product are made regularly in support of Imus Ranch for Kids with Cancer and Jane Goodall's Roots & Shoots Conservation Program.

Farmaesthetics supports the Campaign for Safe Cosmetics, Union of Concerned Scientists and National Organic Standards Board mandate for truth in labeling.

Farmaesthetics has incorporated passive solar heating and natural lighting in its warehouse and office facility.
