

Under the Canopy is the destination of choice for authentic, organic fashions for women and the home since 1996. From farm to factory, to the front door of our valued customers, we feel that style and quality need not be mutually exclusive with environmental and social responsibility.

At Under the Canopy we maintain 100% organic integrity in the way our business is run and our products are designed, sourced and manufactured. We work with certified organic and sustainable fibers and manufacture with a focus on “human first” working conditions.

Our company promotes the highest organic standards at all times and as a result, our products are better for the environment and the people whose lives they touch. From assisting the organic farm communities from which our cotton comes and factories in which we produce, to maintaining product certification by the most stringent organic agencies, authenticity is paramount.

Under the Canopy. Earth Wise. Style Conscious.